ABSTRACT

A coupler for connecting a first communications network to a second communications network. The coupler implements its functionality in software.